

TRAINING EVENTS FOR PEOPLE WHO LIVE AND WORK WITH YOUNG CHILDREN

Story Telling in Early Literacy

The promotion of early literacy through story telling allows children the freedom to develop ideas, concepts and discover the value of their voice. Reading and writing become natural complement to communication strategies developed through story telling.

Telling the Story

This practical workshop focuses on strategies for telling the story. We experiment with voice, sound, expression, body language and the development of a story telling style.

Why kids put things up their nose and how that helps them learn.

I am convinced that originator of the phrase "you never know unless you try" had not reached the age of 7. We look at process oriented experiential learning and how this approach complements a child's natural development.

Parenting Through Natural Consequences

If most punitive parenting approaches scare children into good behaviour, then how do kids behave when there is no one there to scare them? If many permissive parenting approaches bribe children into good behaviour, then how do kids behave when there is no one there to pay them? The alternative for more and more families is a parenting approach that is focused on teaching children the Natural Consequences of their choices and actions. By learning the lessons for themselves, children develop their own source of discernment and see the importance of their own role in their lives and the lives of those around them.

EVENTS FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

Kidspeak: Effective and Efficient Communication Strategies Through Story Telling

A series of confidence building and communication development group activities developed to initiate, promote and maintain a practical communication strategy within a group of young children.

The Story Teller's Writing Style

For children who struggle to write, using a story teller's approach to content development can be liberating and a catalyst for creation.

Telling the Story and Public Speaking

This practical workshop focuses on strategies helping children the story. We experiment with voice, sound, expression, body language and the development of a story telling style. These are then used to explore presentation skills and the use of story in Public Speaking.

Story Telling Visits

These interactive and entertaining presentations allow children to experience the story in a whole new way. Using a mixture of mime, drama and sound effects the stories come alive in a style that has been described as a "Mix of Robert Munsch and Mr. Bean guaranteed to make kids laugh".

Spiritual Training Events for Adults Who Minister to Young Children

Parenting Through Natural Consequences “Discipline through Your Discipleship”

If most punitive parenting approaches scare children into good behaviour, then how do kids behave when there is no one there to scare them? If many permissive parenting approaches bribe children into good behaviour, then how do kids behave when there is no one there to pay them? The alternative for more and more families is a parenting approach that is focused on teaching children the Natural Consequences of their choices and actions. By learning the lessons for themselves, children develop their own source of discernment and see the importance of their own role in their lives and the lives of those around them.

How Would Jesus Tell the Story?

Jesus had any teaching tool in the universe available to Him, yet he consistently chose the story to leave His lessons in Love. We explore the Teaching Strategies described in Christ's interactions in the Gospels and teach your team how to use those same strategies to better share the Word today.

Such as These

Jesus said, "Let the little children come to me... for the kingdom of heaven belongs to such as these." Is there something that children know about life that adults have forgotten? I believe that if we can rediscover the perspective of a child, we can see God in a manner that many of us have forgotten.

Your 3rd Chance

While most parents are aware of their roles in development of their children's spiritual lives, it is easy to forget that our children play an equally important role in the development of their parent's spiritual lives. We examine what our families teach our children about God, what our Children teach us about God and how God reveals His love for us through the divinity of the parent/child relationship.

Why kids put things up their nose and how that helps them learn.

I am convinced that originator of the phrase "you never know unless you try" had not reached the age of 7. We look at process oriented experiential learning and how this approach complements a child's natural development.

EVENTS FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

Gospel Story Telling

These interactive and entertaining presentations allow children and adults to experience the Gospel in an engaging new way. Using a mixture of mime, drama and sound effects the stories of Jesus come alive in a style that has been described as a "Mix of Robert Munsch and Mr. Bean guaranteed to make kids laugh". These experiences are a wonderful tool for reaching everyone in multi-generational services and can be a catalyst for family focused worship.

Family Retreats

These interactive games and activities are designed to help families with young children reconnect to each other and discover their divine mission as a family. To Love and to be Loved.

Early Childhood Consulting

These services are available to individuals, families and organizations requiring coaching, mentoring or problem solving with the young children in their lives. These services are available at an hourly rate.